A Prep’s World: The place up/on/built into the hill
St. Bede’s Hall, ca. 1960 – before the move
From brochure in 79/4 14:6
The school was founded in 1857 by Cornelius Wittmann on the Rothkopp claim near what is now St. Cloud State University. The original five students included Henry Klostermann of Richmond.
A 1961 fundraising brochure states the need. Notes (author unknown; Fr. Cuthbert?) in 79/2 2:14 give these stats:

1961-62: 325 students; 108 lay (“Gregites”), 216 priesthood candidates (“Bedites”)
1962-63: 374 students;
1968-69: 348 students; 248 lay, 100 priesthood

“Pressure to admit more students is only a secondary reason [for building in 1961-62]. This move is prompted principally by the demands for adequate facilities for both groups.”
Prep Faculty discuss new school, to go on Observatory Hill

The new Abbey Church precedes building a new Prep facility
Groundbreaking takes place Sept. 14, 1961

Groundbreaking ceremony photos show the wall of the Observatory; it is torn down to make room.

Roof removal photo from Ascheman Collection, LP 056.1961.
The site is logged and cleared.
Cement work continues through the winter cold.
The center staircase starts to take shape
(If you’ve only seen the Weber Center and missed the rest of the building, take in the view overlooking the stairs.)
The curved roof segments are put in place, one by one, and coated with cement.
Lots of rebar, lots of cement.
Progress is noted in both The Record and the Prep World
Winter, spring, summer...gradually the buildings take shape.
“Some assembly required...” The dorm is also under construction

Still more to do: A tunnel connects the academic and dormitory buildings.

The Prep World article had noted: "Work on the connecting tunnel will be delayed until a time when it will have something to connect."
...and there was a lot of landscaping!
Landscapers avoid the historic pines overlooking Boniface Bay
And speaking of landscaping...laying sod = summer work for many.
