Admissions Phonethon a Success

The Admissions Office wishes to thank all those who participated in the recent Phonethon in the Alumni Lounge.

Every-one current students and faculty workers took part in the calling of 650 high school students who had been enrolled or accepted at Saint John’s. Students and parents were uniformly appreciative of the call. “I guess I chose the right school,” one student remarked, “if they care enough to call even after I sent in my $300 deposit.”

Bishops’ Pastoral Discussed

by Paula Cutter

“The Pastoral Letter on War and Peace: What Have the Bishops Accomplished?” This was the question asked by Bishop John Langen and Michael Novak at the symposium sponsored by the CSB/STJ Pastoral Center, February 28. Five student panels presented questions on this issue for the speaker and many filled the Great Hall to hear it discussed. But as the dialogue opened it became evident that both Langen and Novak asked their own questions.

Early in his speech Rev. Langen, a Research Fellow at Woodstock Theological Center at Georgetown University, outlined three questions concerning the Bishop’s Pastoral: What happened? What does it mean? What will come after?

He answered his first question by explaining that the bishops have done a public service by bringing visibility to the third side of the public policy-making triangle. The previously more prevalent sides of the war/peace issue have been military technology and strategy considerations. Langen believes that the Bishop’s Pastoral has brought a perspective for discourse in the third side – the moral and religious aspect of war and peace.

Langen answered his second question about the meaning of the pastoral by saying that through this American document our social life can be related to theology. To his question of what will happen he answered that much depends upon future U.S.-Soviet relations. He also admitted that there may be unintended consequences.

In his presentation, Michael Novak, a resident scholar in religion and public policy at Georgetown University, spoke on the need for a new generation of Christian humanitarians. The title of his presentation, “The Catholic Right to Peace.”

“The middleman between the university and the Board is Jon McGee, the Administrative Assistant to the President…”

“McGee graduated last year from SJU and says he has learned a great deal about the functions of the university that he did not even know existed.”
Presentation of the award was made by Fr. Alberic Culhane, OSB, Vice President for Institutional Advancement. Approximately 30 Bismarck-Mandan area Saint John's alumni, their spouses and other guests attended the dinner ceremony.

The award consists of a wood plaque with a laser-etched depiction of the Saint John's Abbey/University Church and a citation which reads: "For your unwavering sense of values, for your leadership in the agricultural community, for your citizenship and service to the people of North Dakota, the Saint John's University Alumni Achievement Award is presented to George Sinner, Class of 1950, 13 February 1986."

Area school kids have "Children's Day" at Saint John's

Approximately 200 students from five St. Cloud area elementary schools participated in the first-ever "Children's Day" at Saint John's Saturday, Feb. 8.

The first through sixth graders from Albany, Eden Valley, Holdingford, St. Joseph and Sauk Rapids elementary schools attended two one-hour classes taught by college professors. Courses offered include All That Jazz, Talking to Computers, Waves in Science, It's in the Genes, Learning French and Chemical Magic.

The project was coordinated by Randy Loberg, program assistant for District 712 community education, and Jon McGee, assistant to the president at Saint John's.

Women's Week set

By Elizabeth Hender

The CSB and SIU campuses will soon experience a change of seasons. That is, "Seasons of Change" this year's Women's Week, will be here next week bringing with it a busy schedule of events.

"Most of the things we have planned this year deal with women and relationships," said Pam Freiricks, Women's Week Steering Committee Chair.

In the past, Women's Week has focused on many different aspects of the challenges women face. It began as a result of a suggestion to the Student Administration Board by the CSB administration. Since that time, it has remained a student-run event sponsored by the SAB, according to Freiricks.

"My guess is that Women's Week began about 10 years ago said Colleen O'Connell, CSB CSB executive vice president. "It seems to me, as long as we live in a society that denies women the chance to utilize their potential, Women's Week will continue to be important."

Women's Week committee member. "As much as people like to think so, we do not live in an era in which there's no gender problem. We want to address these issues that both men and women need to face!"

One unique aspect of this year's Women's Week is the involvement of alumnae. On Friday, CSB alumnae will award classes as well as a career fair and dinner at which they'll discuss their career field with students.

"Alumnae Day is a fine addition," said O'Connell. "Women who've tried what they've learned here at CSB in work and home lives as it pertains to society can share their experiences with present students."

Another special advantage of this year's Women's Week is Wednesday evening's keynote speaker, Rebecca Hill, whose presentation is entitled "Building Relationships on What We Know: Legacies of Love and Rejection."

"It's exciting to have the speaker coming to campus," said Jon McGee, of the SIU President's office and Alumnae House.

"I thought Women's Week was a great thing when I was a student, and it still is now," said Jon McGee, of the SIU President's office and Alumnae House.

Master Plan for SJU campus released

By Tim McGee

In 2011, when this year’s seniors come back for their 25-year reunion, they may be surprised by what they see. This January the first draft of the master plan for the SJU campus was released to the University. The three architectural firms involved spent two years working on the project to come up with a plan which would not only enhance the campus while allowing for future expansion. The plan is currently available to review at the library or on the University’s website. The master plan is designed to be completed over a 10-15 year span. The work during this planning stage will be mainly focused on creating a plan for the future of the campus. The master plan is designed to be completed over a 10-15 year span. NEWSFLASH

Saint John's Administrative Assembly's 1999/2000 OPENING LUNCHEON
Wednesday, Sept. 8, 11:45 a.m.-1 p.m., Quad 264

This first luncheon of the year's series is free, but those wanting to attend should RSVP to Devereux Scholl at 3366 or by e-mail (daches) so later than Monday noon, Sept. 6 (Labor Day).

Saint John's strongly encourages attendance at these luncheon meetings, which are informative, fun and an ideal way to meet administrators from all departments on the Saint John's campus. Fr. Vincent Iglarz, OSB, again has been invited to present a brief clip of the history of Saint John's at each month's session.

For each subsequent luncheon, you will receive an e-mail invitation 7-10 days in advance. You are asked to RSVP on the Monday preceding the luncheon. The cost of each lunch, excluding the free September kickoff, is $3.

Following are the dates of the Administrative Assembly luncheons for 1999-2000, all of which will take place in Quad 264:

- Nov. 10 Physical Plant - long term plans (Br. Linus Aeschmen OSB)
- Dec. 8 Saint John's Over the Past Century
- Jan. 12 Benedictine Values at Saint John's
- Feb. 9 Saint Cloud Convention/Visitors Bureau
- Mar. 8 Assembly's Business Meeting
- April 12 Summer/Special Events Office
- May 3 Recognition Luncheon

Jon McGee was recently named vice-president of research, planning and communication at CSB/SJU. Most recently McGee was director of institutional planning and research at CSB/SJU.

McGee graduated summa cum laude from SJU in 1984 and received a master's in public affairs from the Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota in 1988.

From 1992 to 1999, McGee served as vice-president for research and policy development with the Minnesota Private College Council. McGee was a budget analyst with the Minnesota Department of Finance from 1988 to 1992.
Dear Friends:

Greetings and welcome to the latest issue of Saint John’s Magazine. As you will read, it has been an eventful spring and summer at Saint John’s University – an auspicious beginning to a new year and a new century.

To begin, our students continue to receive a variety of academic honors – from the Young Botanist Award (page 13) to GTE Academic All-American honors (page 29). They also continue a long-standing tradition of service during spring break. This year, more than 270 students participated in 23 service projects trips around the country. And one of our students studying abroad in South Africa made headlines by donating his worldly possessions to the poor he encountered (see page 9). We can be proud, indeed, that our students have such kind and generous hearts.

For the second straight year, Saint John’s and Saint Benedict’s have experienced a sizeable increase in the number of applications for admission. As a result, again this year we filled our incoming class in early May. You can read all about this success in Enrollment...

CSBS/JU Make Jump in Latest
US News and World Report Rankings

SJU, along with CSB, moved up from tier three to tier two in the latest US News and World Report “Best Colleges” rankings. CSB CSB/SJU are listed in the Liberal Arts Colleges – Bachelor’s category, which comprises the nation’s 238 liberal arts colleges that emphasize undergraduate education. Tier two includes schools ranked between 56 and 114 in the Liberal Arts Colleges – Bachelor’s category.

CSBS/JU have been ranked together in the third tier for at least the last five years. The only Catholic liberal arts institution rated more highly than CSBS/JU is the College of the Holy Cross, which is in a tier one institution. No other Catholic liberal arts colleges are included in tier two.

Only two other Minnesota institutions are recognized as tier two national liberal arts colleges — Gustavus Adolphus and St. Olaf.
Carleton and Macalester are tier one institutions.

Jen McGee ’84, vice president for planning, research and communication at CSBS/JU, commenting on the move to tier two: “I think the colleges and our students have a lot to be proud of. To be recognized as peers of some of the finest colleges in the land is a tremendous achievement. Having said all of that, though, we can’t lose sight of our institutional values and aspirations. While rankings do help us define our peers, our principal objective is to provide our students with an exceptional educational experience.
Perhaps more than anything else, the rankings help to validate that commitment.”

"Vice President of Planning & Affairs" ??!

In the past few years, CSB/SJU has attempted to increase the diversity of the student population and this year is no exception. Although the official numbers will not be available until next week, it is projected that nearly 10 percent of new students enrolled at CSB/SJU this fall will add that desired diversity to our campuses.

"We've made a lot of progress in a short amount of time," said Vice President of Planning & Affairs Jon McGee. "Since 2004, the number of American students of color has more than doubled at SJU and tripled at CSB."

Mr. Jon McGee is vice president for planning and public affairs at the College of Saint Benedict and Saint John’s University. He has worked in higher education research and policy for 24 years. He serves on the cabinet of both colleges and is responsible for research and analysis in support of enrollment and budget decision-making, state and federal government relations, and strategic planning. His book, Breakpoint: The Changing Marketplace for Higher Education examines key forces of disruption in higher education and offers a framework to colleges and universities for addressing those issues. McGee is a trustee of the College Board. He also serves on the faculty of the Harvard Summer Institute on College Admissions.

Jon McGee

Jon McGee is Vice President for Planning and Strategy at the College of Saint Benedict and Saint John’s University. He is responsible for research and analysis in support of enrollment and budget decision-making, state and federal government relations, and strategic planning. He has worked in higher education research and policy for 30 years. Prior to joining the College of Saint Benedict and Saint John’s University in 1999, he worked as a budget analyst with Minnesota’s Department of Finance and as Vice President for Research and Policy Development with the Minnesota Private College Council.

McGee is a frequently invited speaker nationally on demographic trends, the economics of higher education, and the intersection of mission, market, and institutional values. His book, Breakpoint: The Changing Marketplace for Higher Education (Johns Hopkins University Press), examines key forces of disruption in higher education and offers a framework to colleges and universities for addressing those issues. His new book, Dear Parents (Johns Hopkins University Press), offers parents and families of college-bound students a guide for navigating the complex and often emotional challenge of preparing for college. McGee serves as a trustee of the College Board. He also is a member of the faculty of the Harvard University Summer Institute on College Admissions.

McGee is a 1984 graduate of Saint John’s University and lives in Cold Spring, Minnesota—a small town with a real hardware store, a small craft brewery, and a great bakery—with his wife and their four children. In fall 2015, he and his wife began 13 consecutive years of undergraduate tuition payments.

SAINT JOHN’S PREP NAMES NEW HEAD OF SCHOOL

JON McGEE BRINGS ACADEMIC LEADERSHIP, COLLEGE PREPARATION EXPERTISE TO SAINT JOHN’S PREP AT HISTORIC MOMENT

After a nationwide search, Saint John’s Preparatory School in Collegeville, Minn., is proud to announce Jon McGee as its new head of school. McGee, who currently serves as the vice president for planning and strategy at the College of Holy Cross and Saint John’s University (CHBU), will take office on July 1. He will be the first lay leader of the school following 29 monastic members of Saint John’s Abbey who have successively led the school since its founding in 1867.

"Jon McGee is an excellent educational leader with extensive experience in the private college and university market not only at Saint Ben’s and Saint John’s but across the country," said Chris Twohey, chair of the Saint John’s Preparatory School Board of Regents and a member of the class of 1966. "His years of dedication to education and student preparation for life, and his passion for prayer and the theological virtues, was evident throughout the search and interview process. We are thrilled he will lead the school at this historic moment!"

After current Headmaster Mr. Jonathan Uecker, CSSP, announced his retirement last fall, Saint John’s Prep enlisted Canby, Sandhir and Associates, a national educational search firm, to help with the head of school search. Tom Glick, a member of the CHBU Board of Regents, chaired the Head of School Search Committee made up of parent, faculty, alumni, monastic and board of regent representatives. The four-month search produced an outstanding response from education leaders from across the United States and abroad. After thorough vetting of many highly qualified candidates, Saint John’s Preparatory School Board of Regents voted unanimously and enthusiastically on Feb. 25, 2019, to approve the search committee’s recommendation to appoint McGee as its new head of school.
